It pre-sents at considerable length the evils sents at considerable length the evils claimed to have resulted from various forms of monopoly. Copies will soon be sent out for general publication. Porter's Friends Claim

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The Graphic's

Washington special says: Gen. Fitz-John Porter's friends claim that there John Porter's friends claim that there are new developments that will help his case. They will produce a telegraph operator from Pope's headquarters during the Rapidan campaign, and they claim he can show that it was impossible for Porter to have obeyed the orders are him even if delivered in fact ble for Porter to have obeyed the or-ders sent him, even if delivered in fact, but they could not have been delivered at the time it was testified to; that in-stead of half-past five o'clock, it must have been after dark. They profess to be able to show by the knowledge the operators had in communicating with one another over the wire, that for two days, while Pope thought he had the days, while Pope thought he had the enemy on his front, they were

And that he was outgeneraled and a scapegoat had to be found, and this was Porter's ill-fortune. It is reported also that Gen. Ruggles, now on Sherman's staff, will tell what he knows, and that he will say that Pope was in the wrong in the matter, and that Porter was given orders impossible of execution. It is said that Grant's last expression of country had the effect of pression of opinion had the effect of opening the mouths of the general officers who before regarded it discreet to preserve silence. The President will be urged to take action on the verdict of the Board of Review which set aside the findings of the first Court Martial.

decided in favor of the restoration of Fitz John Porter to the army. The only question in connection with the case is in regard to Porter's back pay. When cashiered he held the rank of Colonel of the Regular Army, and as Major-General of Volunteers. The question is now whether his back pay as Major-General would accrue to him up to his reinstatement or whether it would terminate in 1866, when other Major-Generals were mustered out of the service. The question has been the service. The question has been referred to the Attorney-General. The President will nominate Porter as Colonel of Infantry to fill the first vacancy and Porter will probably ask to be

The Cloture Proposition Modified-Workings of the Land Act.

LONDON, Feb. 21.-In the House of Commons, last evening, Gladstone moved a suspension of the order of the day for the introduction of the rules of proceedure. The Opposition warmly opposed the motion. The order of the day was finally suspended without di-vision. Gladstone, in moving the clo-ture, modified the numbers in the resolution so that the cloture must be sup ported by one hundred votes. Gladstone said the Legislature in the United States had found it expedient to adopt measures restricting discussion, and they had never worked badly. Sir Stafford Northcote said the first resolution with the state of the st The grand jury last night brought in additional Star Route indictments against McIrredel, private secretary to ex-Senator Dorsey, for subordination of perjury; John W. A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE.

orial Presented to Mrs. G. field by Ex-Confederates.

ctated Press Dispatches. CLEVELAND, Feb. 22.-A commit representing ex-Confederate soldiers of Cincinnati visited Mrs. Garfield at Mentor, to-day, and presented her with a beautiful memorial tribute to James

A. Garfield, in the shape of sympathet ic and eulogistic resolutions. MRS. GARFIELD'S REPLY. Mrs. Garfield with great effort reressed her emotion while the old other of the late President wept violently. Both were clad in deepes mourning. The late President's widow her voice trembling with emotion, re-plied to the address of Gen. Withers as follows:

"Gentlemen, I am very grateful to you, and to those from whomthis beau-tiful gift comes, both for its sake and the sentiment you express."

The two Madams Garfield then examined the memorial gift and express-ed their admiration of the frame to Mr. Knife, its maker, who said: "My heart went out in sympathy for the President and I volunteered to make that frame, and I made it so it may remain a standing testimony of South-era sentiment." Gen. Withers added "And, moreover, we want to show these Northern politicians that we ex-Confederates are not as black as they try to make us out to be." The younger Mrs. Garfield responded: "It had always been the General's greatest wish that there be no North or South. His earnest desire was to see a united country and had he lived —" Here her grief overcame her and the sentence was unfinished. After a brief silence courtesies were exchanged and the visitors withdrew.

WOOL WASHING

This industry is a very important one and should be carried on in Southern California on an extensive scale, thereby sating a large percentage of freight and securing a better reputation for our wool in the Eastern markets. The process used East is as follows: The wool is placed in large vats of cold water, thoroughly soaked, then steam is turned on and the wool heated; cold water is added in proportion to the steam at the top, thus removing a large proportion of the grease and dirt. The wool is then taken out and spread on frames to dry, in such a position that heated air can be freely circulated between the frames. When thoroughly dry the wool is placed in another vat of hot water, potash added, which, with age published under the title of "Two the remainder of the grease in the wool Tears Refere the Mast" contains much forms a seap on the surface that can be easily removed. The wool is stirred around in the ketles for some time then taken out and thoroughly rinsed in cold water, and placed on frames in the open air, resulting in the wool becoming of what it has had since the adven perfectly white and clean from all im-

One of the most hideous deformities of this beautiful city is the ungainly signs across the sidewalks which greet the passer-by on every hand. Towns one half the size of Los Angeles, and making far less pretentions to metropolitan greatness, have long since discarded them. To a new-comer nothing mars the beauty of the elegant buildings as much as these hideous boards of all sizes, shapes and colors, hanging up like wind-mill arms in every direction.

A Comprehensive History of the Electric Light.

The Experiments of Professor Draper I Than Thirty Years Ago The Edison and Brush Systems.

By J. W. Redway. More than thirty years ago Profes raper performed an experiment in one of his popular lectures which caused no little nent in the scientific community o which he was a recognized leader. About twenty cells of battery were arranged so that their poles might be connected by a wire of copper. When the two ends of the copper wire were brought together a faint spark of electricity was observed; but when the ends of the copper wire were fastened to a short piece of platinum wire the latter was heated to such a degree that the large hall was illuminated by the There were many endeavors to bring means of general illumination, but the exense of maintaining a battery was so reat that it was deemed impossible. The explanation of Draper's experiment s not a difficult one. Electricity does not pass through different metals with the these experiments into practical use as a nuch "electric friction" that heat is devel oped according to the same law by which heat is developed when two pieces of wood are rubbed together. Within

A FEW YEARS, A FEW YEARS,
However, great improvements have been made in magneto-electric machine is best exemplified in the ordinary "crank" galvanic battery which is used by physicians. It consists of a strong magnet in the shape of the letter U, and a piece of soft iron bent in the same shape. Around the soft iron is wound half a dozen or more coils of wire covered with nilk as as to keen; it invulsated. sovered with silk so as to keep it insulated. Now when the ends of the soft iron U are when the class of the soft front of are whirled so that they almost touch the ends of the magnet U, the latter causes the former to become a magnet, and this in turn generates a powerful current of electricity, which, is sent through the silk-covered wire. Fix a hundred of these wire-covered iron cones in a cylinder and have them whisking around as many magnets, and the result is a Gramme or a Siemens machine. One of these machines will generate a more powerful current than a thousand cells of battery.

Electric lighting without a Gramme or a Siemens generator is out of the question. Edison's invention contained no new principle. He merely used a spiral of new principle. He merely used a spiral of platinum wire contained in a glass tube and fastened to two bits of copper wire which passes through the ends of the tube. This tube was placed in the circuit and in an instant the spiral was heated to a dazzling white heat. But Edison found that his platinum wire soon became cracked and brittle, or else melted. So in place of the platinum he took a piece of bamboo about the size of a corset-whale-bone, bent it in the shape of a horseshee and charred it until it was pure charcoal or carbon. This carbon loop had one great advantage and one disadvantage. There was one hundred times the resistance or electric pressure in its favor, but its easy combustibility was against it. In order to obviate this difficulty Edison confined the carbon loop in a glass tube, from which the air was carefully exhausted.

After a long series of experiments he has produced a lamp costing thirty-five cents, which is good for a year's service. Fourteen thousand of these lamps, each giving the light of two gas jets, or thirty-two candles, are now used in New York. For the use of one of these lamps the consumer pays as much as he would for a single gas jet. In other words, he gets twice as much light for his money.

Neither do the Brush, nor the Jablochkoff lamp contain any principle that has not new principle. He merely used a spiral of platinum wire contained in a glass tube nor the Werderman, nor the Jablochkof lamp contain any principle that has not KNOWN FOR YEARS.

Between twenty-five and thirty years go Foucault, and later Duboscy, conceivago Foucault, and later Duboscy, conceived the idea of placing two sticks of carbon in the electric circuit so that one was attached to the positive and the other to the negative pole of the battery. The two carbon sticks were put end to end, the negative pole of the battery. The two carbon sticks were put end to end, and as they touched the circuit was complete. The two ends glowed with a brilliant light, and as they were drawn slightly apart a vivid white flame aprang from one carbon to the other. The Foucault lamp required from one hundred to two hundred cells of battery, and as it cost twenty times as much as a gas jet the light was never seen outside of the lecture room of the university. Then there was another objection: one of the carbon sticks wasted away and when it reached a certain distance out went the light. So a clockwork regulator was devised which as hould keep the carbons always at the same distance. This regulator placed the cost of the lamp at about one hundred dollars.

But with the Gramme magneto-machine came the possibility of using the Foucault lamp. Brush made some important modifications in the lamp and it now bears his name. Jablochoff in order to OVERCOME THE COST Of the Foucault lamps placed the carbon sticks side by side with a strip of cement between them. As the carbons were con-sumed the electricity fused its way through the cement. Werderman allowed the positive carbon to rest by its own weight on a carbon disk, thus avoiding the same difficulty. But the Brush and the Siemens lamps have driven all other competitors out of the field. They are certainly the best of the kind, but they are not all that is to be desired. They do, however, contain principles of the highest value, and as electric lighting passes from an experimental to a scientific stage these lamps will be modified for the better.

It will be seen that the Edison and the Brush lights are somewhat different in their scope. The former is adapted to house lighting, the latter to street illumination.

AN OLD TIMER KICKS.

le Wants to Know What is the Los Angeles, Feb. 22, 1882.

EDITOR LOS ANGELES TIMES: It is an old and accepted trueism that "What is worth doing at all is worth well doing," and the expression seems peculiarly applicable to the procession of the 22d inst. The Eagle Corps presented a fine and soldierly appearance. They are proficient in drill, and their drum corps is alike creditable, and did well considering their limited practice; but it would have been, in our estimation, more discreet and sensible to have allowed the muskets to remain in the Armory than to attempt a parade on such a day without a band of music at least, and the public should have had patriotism and public spirit enough to have provided it. The writer has travto have provided it. The writer has traveled some, and never in his experience has seen in a city of this size, such an abortive attempt at a display as the one referred to, the Eagle Corps seeming to be the only persons who manifested any public spirit in the matter. The city is full of strangers; men of capital are here who desire to invest, and people will form an opinion of the patriotism and liberality of a community by what they see. If it is to be the fashion not to parade on Washington's birthday, don't do it; but if it is the custom, "whoop it up," and bring out every available horn and drum in the land, the firemen and civic societies, and make a showing that would be a credit to a larger town instead of a smaller one. In years same case. Silver conducts it best of all; town instead of a smaller one. In years copper is mearly as good. Platinum offers eleven times the resistance to the passage of the current as does copper. The passage of the current is attended with so

A RIVERSIDE PARTY.

Riverside Still Booming—The New Pavilion—G. H. ¡Fullerton.

E. W. Holmes of Riverside, looked in on the Times office vesterday and when he went away left a half-dozen of the beautigolden apples he raises on his handme place. They were of the Riverside Navel and paper rind St. Michael varieties and while beautiful to the eye were also delicious to the taste. Mr. Holmes re ports Riverside still up above the clouds as it were, everything prosperous and everybody happy.

The horticultural pavilion which they are erecting is now receiving the roof, and they are expecting to hold an interesting citrus fair next month, beginning on th 22d. The building will cost about $6,000 and the money is subscribed and paid in, so there can be no debt overshadowing it. Mr. Holmes states that he is almost be-

Mr. Holmes states that he is almost besieged by parties inquiring for land there almost fabulous figure there are not persons enough that will part with their landsto supply the demands of new comers.

Accompanying Mr. Holmes is Geo. H.

an old friend and army comrade of Mr.

is to look after an orange grove he had

CONFIDENCE BALL-

Grand Time at Turn Verein Hall Last Night.

Last night Turn Verein Hall was rowded, it being the occasion of the entertainment and ball given by Confidence Engine Company No. 2. It is but seldon that such a large audience is seen at this hall. Walter Moore, the stage manager. took much pains to get up a good enter ainment and his labors were rewarded for the entire programme was an excellent one and the boys may well be proud of their success. The hall was handsomly lecorated with evergreens and pictures several selections on guitars, which were well received.

Home, Sweet Home, played by W. M. Cline on a harmonica, never sounded sweeter.

Several others took part, after which the main feature of the evening, the old Spanish dance in the ancient costume came off. Some of the figures were very pretty and when the comic parts came in the audience applauded to the heart's content.

The floor was then cleared and dancin was kept up until a late hour, when the participants departed, having enjoyed themselves immensely.

Almost a Centenarian.

J.G. Deming, Esq., of the Capitol Mills, was called to the city yesterday on account of the illness of his aged father who is almost a centenarian-eighty-seven summers and winters having rolled over him. To but few has it been vouchsafed to see so much of the growth of our country and the world. Mr. D. was four years old when Washington died, and has seen the entire growth and wonderful expansion of the country, and the remarkable improvements that have made this country peculiarly one of progress in all the mechanical arts and in education.

Port Street M. E. Church Crowded Last Night Reception — The Presents and Who Were There.

Whenever a wedding is announced take place in church in high life it is more than certain that the edifice will be crowded to its utmost capacity. Last night was not an exception to the rule. How a Man Advertises for a

A few weeks ago a well-known old schelor of this city advertised for a wife. He has been looking out for a compan of this kind for some time, but failed in very venture until he received this: every venture until he received this:

"I am twenty-! years old, good nachured, have a torrible good education, am a milliner by trade, lite hair, lite blue eyes, Tawl, well proportioned and of poor but respectable family." Don't forgit two rite too me as soon as you git this or com and se me at mas, she wont car."

He will probably be a happy man yet.

Pluck and Energy Wanted.

Many Eastern people coming here for their health and seeking employment also are inclined to say harsh things about Lo Angeles because they do not succeed in securing work in a short time. It should be borne in mind that a large number of such semi-invalids are constantly arriving such semi-invalids are constantly arriving here, hence the stores, offices, etc., are replenished with a never failing supply. There is as good an opening in Los Angeles, however, as in any city in the United States for any man with pluck and persistence, spiced with a little patience. The writer knows whereof he speaks.

by W. J. HORNE, which he is extensively advertising as the W. J. HORNE BELT. This Belt was invented and patented by myself.

Invented and patented by myself. Afterward I assigned one half interest in this Belt to W. J. Horne, which he now owns in common with me. This Belt has taken two premiums at State Fairs; but as I have invented another BELT, of double the power of the HORNE & WEST BELT, and much superior to it in every respect, and which I make and sell for ONE HALF the cost of the old Horne & West Belt, I will sell my one-half interest, in the Horne and West Belt cheap for cash.
